EMERGENCY RESPONSE FUND
The future is immediate and there’s no time to lose

IsraAID provides emergency medical care, public health guidance, psychosocial support, relief items, and water, sanitation and hygiene solutions all over the world. The moment we arrive someplace impacted by disaster, we begin working with affected communities to create solutions together.

The IsraAID Emergency Response Fund enables us to reach these communities. Established in 2017, the fund ensures our rapid response to disasters and allows us to help in emergencies that may not get a lot of international attention.

The Emergency Response Fund also supports our preparations for future emergencies in some of the world’s most disaster-vulnerable locations. Thanks to the fund, we are making sure our long-term staff have the training and resources they need.

By supporting this fund, you can help us reach more people in crisis, wherever they are.

Guatemala

In November 2020, central Guatemala was hit by two major tropical storms. Jaime Rhemrev led IsraAID’s emergency response:

“As we surveyed one community that had been buried by a landslide, the community members were already reflecting on what happened and looking ahead.”

“This is the first step: understanding not only what went wrong but what can be done to head off future crises. This type of thinking is exactly why we’re here, and why we’ll stay here.”
